

For wounds slow to heal

Supplied in packages containing five 0.5-gram ampuls and individual 5-gram ampuls

Buffered Cysteine Hydrochloride Squibb

ORDINARILY varicose and decubital ulcers, intractable burns and extensively denuded surfaces readily respond to the specifically stimulative effect of 0.5 per cent Buffered Cysteine Hydrochloride.

Cysteine is derived from the natural sulphhydryl-containing substance of the body. By its stimulating effect on cell proliferation it hastens the healing process. Buffered Cysteine Hydrochloride inhibits bacterial growth and diminishes discharge. It should not be used in neoplastic ulcerations or in the various forms of pre-malignant conditions.

QUINTUPLETS

YET THEY ARE ALL DIFFERENT

Five small packages of humanity may create such a stir in the world as to be headlined almost daily in the press of a continent. All bearing one family name, as they grow older differences in character and action develop and become increasingly apparent. The "Five Types" packages of a medically accepted oil and agar emulsion bear one family name, Petrolagar, N.N.R.

These five members of the Petrolagar family are varied in character and act differently on the large bowel. Two are entirely without added medication and three have added laxative ingredients supplied with the purpose of serving the manifold requirements of the physician. Petrolagar does not make the headlines of the lay press, as we believe that only the physician can treat constipation safely and effectively. When indicated, write your prescription for Petrolagar. Additional information and samples sent free on request.

THE HOFFMAN BIOPSY PUNCH

has been designed to assist the surgeon in obtaining specimens of suspected tissues in sub-cutaneous tumors, cysts, etc.

The instrument is introduced through a puncture wound into the tumor. At the point selected for biopsy, pressure is made on knob of specimen cutter and handles are allowed to open. Gentle outward traction allows the hook shaped cutter to imbed itself into the tumor. On closing the handles, the cutter is withdrawn into the sheath, shearing away the tissue specimen. The cutter is then withdrawn with its contained specimen, through the sheath without contaminating the intervening tissue. The puncture wound in the tumor and needle track may be coagulated with the electrode before withdrawal of the punch.

Priced with accessories as shown, complete, $30.00

PAIN

By virtue of its anesthetic qualities, Nupercainal, "Ciba" gives prolonged relief almost immediately from the pain and discomfort accompanying sunburn.

As in the treatment of hemorrhoids, burns, dry eczema, dermatitis, roughened and chapped skin, pruritus ani et vulvae, anal fissures, etc., the unbearable pain and tormenting itching quickly yield to the anesthetic and analgesic action of Nupercainal.

VITAMINS

CONTAINED IN BREWERS' YEAST ARE NECESSARY FOR NORMAL FUNCTION of GASTRIC GLANDS

In experiments by WEBSTER AND ARMOUR on Vitamine-B and gastric secretion, they state: (Proc. Exp. Biol. & Med., Jan. '34) "Administration of powdered brewers' yeast restored the normal secretory activity of the stomach in 3 days. This indicated that for the normal activity of the gastric glands it is necessary that the vitamins contained in yeast, presumably vitamin B complex, be present in the body."

PEMBERTON & OSGOOD (Chronic Arthritis—MacMillan & Co., 1934) state that . . . "there is general agreement that lack of vitamin B in animals leads to, among other changes, atrophy of the mucous and muscular layers of the gastrointestinal tract . . ."

BREWERS' YEAST-HARRIS

is a remarkably pure culture of brewers' yeast. It is a dry, pasteurized powder, prepared especially for medicinal use that will not ferment in the stomach. It keeps indefinitely at room temperature and is delicious to the taste. It can be taken with regular food, mixed with milk or fruit juice or sprinkled on cereal.

YEAST VITAMINE-HARRIS TABLETS

contain the concentrated Vitamine-B from Brewers' Yeast-Harris. They are small, convenient and contain a known amount of Vitamine-B complex. They were the first Yeast Vitamine-B tablets made in America and still are the only concentrated Yeast Vitamine-B tablet for clinical use.
